AN OUTSIDE VIEW OF THE HONG RONG PETITION

The following article from the N. G. > The following article, from a subsequent issue of the same papers, envours rather of "backing and tilling";

The bealthy political sentiment that has been recently generated in Hongkong cannot but be considered as of hanny angury for the futue prosperity of the highly pros perous colony. Hor despite the sadness of the share dealers and the collarse of inflated stocks-perhaps oven in consequence of these circumstances the aubstantial prosperi y of the Hongkong community is a fact which impresses all observers. Nowhere is there an intenser commercial activity, butward and visible than in the pative streets of Victoria. And it is in the actual movement of merchandise and not in fictitions outside in the columns of a lodger, or in the nolimited interchange of inconvertible

I.O.U.A that the sources alike of public revenue and private fortune are to be found. The extraordinary advances which the colony has made, and the eminent position which it has attained in the travelling and trading world have long been the pride of the colonists and the boast of successive Governors. Indeed their only tangible prievanou which outsiders have been able to appreciate appears to be that they have been taken at their word and made to provide for their military defences in some proportion to their own estimate of their espaoity. The jublant-tone dropped while the military contribuion was under discussion, has been resumed, and raised to concert pitch in the recent petition to the House of Commons and we may assume that a full sense of their position will he noeforth be the prevailing onte of colonial sentiment.

How far the feeling extends bayond the circle of the European resident and into the ranks of the Chniese who so vastly cutnumber them, it would be interesting to learn Signs indeed are not wanting that the Chinese population-the only population proper in the island—are well enough satisfied with the administrative regime. And in a cold-blooded people satisfaction perhaps counts for as much as enthusiasm does among more Bervous floor.

It is only natural that on such a solid base of industrial and commercial success there should be erected a superstructure of political life. Prosperity has its uses in widening the horizon; it also brings social responsibilities, and the saccessful merchant or mill-owner does nothing more than his daty to society when he places his experience and his leisure at its disposal for the bottor administration of its affairs.

Interest in the colonial administration is not a new thing in Honokong; but in times post the zeal for reform, if it did not originate in, quickly degenerated into personal controversy. in which the true interests of the public were forgotten. Now the case is different, so at least it is to be hoped. There is a genuine desire to place the affairs of the government in as sound a financial position as the affairs of the insreartile community have now attained, to conomise expenditure while leaving efficiency. It does not follow that the first or the second efforte at refer o will be successful, but every attompt made will at least be rich in experience. their own defence of the eyes of the rethe wants of the petitioners somewhat spread parent on the surface, the r formers them. solves will no doubt bare that first improv-They ought to be allowed the free election sions and second hand information are not to of copresentatives of British nationality in the be implicitly trusted, and that it is detrimental Legislative Conneil of the Calony; a majority to take any step without deliberate circum. spection. We interpreted the agreement with our late manager to be that he was entitled to a small salary, and 15 per cee on the not profits of the company. He claimed that he was entitled to 15 per cent, on the gross profits, and a claim for something like $5.84 was brought against us. This was contested by us. We put the matter in the hands of our legal advisor, with the result that an amount of $2.118 was paid into Court as being due to him. On the statement of accounts as he had presented there to us that was increased by $800. and to compromise the matter, on the advice of our legal advisor, we paid that; consequently we had to pay an amount of $2918 in this year's account, a considerable portion of which belonged the year previous. TREATY ENFORCEMENT IN JAPAN In the Japanese House of Representatives on the 16th inst. Count Ito, the Minister President of State, said -Gentlemen, baving been returned to the Diet at the last general election, you have been summoned by Imperial writ to meet together in the present session. I hope that you will be tow most deliberate consideration upon these men-I purpose, gentlemen, to avail myself of this opportunity to say a few words on the Government's altitude with respect to Treaty Revision. As you may bal aware, the Government's policy on this subject has never changed since the time of the trestoration .- (Gries of "No, No," and various remarks.)-I beg that you will reserve criticisms until I have thushed my speech. It is scarcely necessary to state that the Government has repeatedly attempted to solve this problem and has atedly-failed to attain its object. But in spile of failure, the Government is still pursuing the same line of policy followed in former years all is a matter of deep regret that the dissolution of the late House of Representatives was connected with this subject of Treaty Revision .- Ories of "misunderstanding.")-It is a fact that there was a difference of views between the Government and the House of Representatives, and the consequent dissolution of the House was principally attributable to the introduction of a Representation on the Strict Enforcement of the Presties In itself, that Representation seemed to be of slight consequence, but the Government attac ed much importance to it, because it owed its origin to a movement against the opening of the interior for Mixed Besidence, L. In introducing the Representation already alluded to, you must doubtless have had good reasons for your conduct; and although the Government was sincerely sorry to bring things, to a crisis, it was absolutely necessary under the circumstances to so vise the Emparor to dissolve the House H. Wimrt & O the demand for the conclusion of equal treaties and the opposition to Mixed Residence are incompatible. The Government's policy, as you well know, has always been since the Rostorntion to open the country and muintain the Empire's independent position within the pule of International Law. In other words, our alm has been and is to hold intercourse with other nations by conforming with the onslome prevalent among the principal States of the world. The existing tre ties are absuited fo the gresent state of things, and must be revised. If my imformation is not wrong, some of you seem to regard Strict Enforcement as a means of expoditing Treaty Revision. The Government, however, does not endorse such a view. Of course the Government is strictly suforcing the provisions of the present Treaties, in so far as their enforcement is deemed necessary. But the Government's gravest responsibility in connection with the policy of the country is to accomplish the revision of the existing Trastice. The Government is now diligently engaged in the prosecution of that task, and is determined to sweep every obstacle out of its path.- "Be brave with foreign countries not with your cwa countrymen only." - The Government is porfectly aware that its views may not be acceptable to you, but I think it not altogether unnecessary to lay my opinion on the subject before you and appeal to your candid indgment, The Government, as I have already ted you, will proceed on this matter along the that the consummation of our object is not Watam to . All the lide were asourely fastened and we believe locked Provision had been made for the admission of air by boring three or fanr holes in the bottom of each box, but most of these must have been covered by the clothing which the girls wors. There was also a little brend in each box? The girly kave bad a parilous experience as we understond that the boxes were on the point of being lowered into the hold when the discovery as to their contents was made. The intention of those who had charge f the tounks would appear to have been to relanse the occupants immediately after the vessel laft her berth; but it seems the officers declined o allow the boxes, to be taken to the steerage quarters, as they would occupy so much woom. Just bufore going to press we have excertained that two of the girls are under medical treatment, and it is not yet known where they had from but the other two belong to Yokohama and Shizucka respectively.
